Construction

Attorneys in Musick Peeler's Construction Group provide a range of services to the construction industry. They are proficient in drafting contract terms and specification analyses. They are adept in financial, title, and land use issues as well as risk management and insurance coverage.

The group's extensive experience also covers:

- Bid protests, mechanic's liens and stop notices
- Delay claims and subcontractor substitutions
- Contractor licensing
- Miller Act claims
- Bond and indemnity claims
- Professional liability coverage disputes
- Construction defect and accident controversies

In the public sector, the Construction Group represents non-profit organizations (such as hospitals, museums, colleges, and school districts) in commercial negotiation and construction litigation. In the private sector, the firm's clients include developers, design professionals, general contractors, and lenders engaged in the various types of construction disputes involving banks, condominium complexes, high-rise buildings, hotels, housing tracts, industrial facilities, street improvements, and utilities.
